

Management: Practitioner Programme

Learner outcomes

By the end of the Practitioner level programme, managers and leaders will be able to:

- Explain where strategy comes from and identify and interpret external factors that have implications for
- Identify when new technology can improve processes or data flows and look for opportunities to integrate
- Take steps to mitigate financial and operational risk
- Make complex data-driven decisions that have a tangible impact on citizen outcomes
- Communicate change with authenticity, clarity and vision, connecting to purpose and citizen outcomes
- Practice inclusive leadership by creating a culture based on trust and respect, allowing for challenge and questions to shape the culture.

Is this programme right for you?

Here are three examples of roles that would benefit from the practitioner level of the Management Programme:

Sukran

I am Sukran. I'm due to move and to manage a number of teams in which the people have a wide variety of ability, experience and expertise. I want to embody inclusive leadership whilst ensuring high performance.

Sheila

I am Sheila and I have a very large team to support through a period of significant change and transition. I need to maintain motivation and performance as we move towards the vision.

Fu

I am Fu and have been a Civil Servant for many years. As part of my continuous development and in light of changing ways of working in the Civil Service, I wish to refresh my leadership skills.
